TELEPATHY

This morning I was talking with a radio announcer from Calgary, Alberta, Canada. He's called me several times, but he has no faith in my abilities at all. He asked an interesting question, however; If I can contact extra-terrestrials telepathically, why can't I contact humans?

Well, I am quite sure from time to time I DO contact humans, if not on the conscious level, on the unconscious level, and I DO sometimes, perceive thoughts from individuals I am conversing with, but I try to avoid this whenever possible, because if the individual becomes aware of it on a conscious level it has a tendency of ending our relationship very fast. But the human telepathic transmission center is extremely weak, and, untrained, where those of aliens, especially aliens deliberately trained to be a telepathic link with alien species is very powerful.

Perhaps it is better to put a picture in your mind. You are at the end of a very big, dark room. At the other end of the room is an important sign you need to read, but it is only being lit by a dirty five watt bulb, and you cannot read the message at all because the light is so dim.

Suddenly you find a light switch that turns on a five-thousand watt bulb that is capable of illuminating the entire room, you quickly perceive the message, and are able to pass it along to others.

It was not that the weaker bulb, the human mind, did not want to send you the message, it simply was not strong enough to do the job.... where the brighter bulb, the alien mind, was able to illuminate everything you needed to see.

This, basically is why I can communicate telepathically with aliens, but am not able to do so with humans so clearly and efficiently and perhaps this is as it should be.

THIS IS A UNIVERSAL LIFE MINISTRY.

A SPIRITIST SPEAKS ABOUT
WHAT'S HAPPENED TO THE AWAKENING?
By; Rev. Speaker Gerald A. Polley

By now we should have several Temples across the country, a large headquarters somewhere near here with a staff of forty or more, and be financially provided for. Instead, we are struggling merely to survive. What has gone wrong?

The answer can be expressed in one word; extra-terrestrials. Everything was calculated to the finest detail. Our people were already being reborn and placed into the positions where they would be needed when, in the late 1940s, extra-terrestrials of an interfering nature began to arrive on Earth and set up an operation with the intent of eventually subjecting the Earth's inhabitants. These aliens began to send out teachings similar to our own, and many of those sent to lay down the foundation of The Awakening became confused. Some followed after the extra-terrestrial teachings, some became so confused they chose to do nothing at all. Others began to attack the very thing they were sent to help build.

In the desperateness of the situation all The Bearers Of Light in The Spirit Realm realized that they could not work as separate entities and accomplish the goal that All intended; to create a harmonic world where all the varied religious teachings could live side by side, having their own sacred places and, reaching out for the stars as one people, be united in our understanding of each others' ways.

It was found to fight this menace a direct Alliance would have to be formed so that no one would be working against anyone else, but would be putting all effort into the defeat of the common enemy and the fulfilling of everyone's desires.

Our efforts have met with some success. The strongest of these extra-terrestrial interferences has been directly challenged, and, destroyed. But that destruction has come at a terrible price that has deeply troubled everyone involved in the struggle, not only among the extra-terrestrials, but here on Earth.

Many setbacks have occurred, many situations been unresolved, many lives lost because the Power that was supposed to deal with them has siphoned away to deal with the extra-terrestrials.

The Awakening has not been stopped. NOTHING can stop it. It has only been delayed. How MUCH it has been delayed we cannot calculate. There are too many variables. But we know that things are being put back on track.

Those who are supposed to be with us are being called again, and in time they will answer that call, but exactly when, we do not know.

Babe Ruth speaking on behalf of the old time baseball players states they are extremely disappointed with the results of the baseball strike. They feel they have been betrayed by everyone, especially the owners. In their opinion the game has been seriously damaged for little or nothing.

There will come a time, he says, when the current system of legal slavery controlled by the owners will have to come to an end. It does not matter how much a man is paid. If he cannot play where he wants to play he is still a slave.

THE SPIRITS SPEAK

Our interview this issue is with Isis, the Egyptian Goddess of Healing and Enlightenment, channeled through Rev. Speaker Gerald A. Polley.

1. Greetings, Noble Lady! Let us ask first just who were The Egyptian Gods?

A. As you well know, sir, we of Egypt were survivors of The Great Holocaust when The Children of The One God and The Children Of Spirit fought their final battle on Earth. We were some of the servants the Goddess had created out of the local race to tend their fields and operate their machines.

After the Great Destruction a small number of us survived in the Nile Valley, and ruled it for a thousand years or more until the last of us died and our descendants quarreled among themselves, and Egypt became separate states until the great Menes united it again, into a single country, and began to build there a great nation.

The Egyptian legends are the stories of our rule passed down from generation to generation. I will not speak of this because in time I know according to your bargain with us you will put these things down in the history of your people, so that all things may be well remembered.

2. Why did you want this interview?

A. I have not come to answer silly questions to amuse idle minds. I have come to give mankind a warning, especially a warning to those that profess to follow the Teachings of the kind and gentle Muhammed. But a warning that is also for the rest of the world.

3. What precisely, is this warning?

A. That the people of Egypt are ours. They are our children, our descendants, they are our charges, and, our joy. None will rule over them but us. We have no quarrel with any other people, any other deity, any other Teachers but those who profane the Teachings of The Holy and use them for conquest and oppression, those we will battle and those we WILL destroy!

Ra is returning, and all the Pharaohs come with him. They already have breath, flesh and bone, and are scattered to the four winds. They are dark of skin, light of skin, and, yellow skinned. But within their hearts they are Pharaoh, and their Soul is Egypt.

Already Khufu was among you but you murdered him because he made peace with your neighbors, a crime that has not yet been fully punished.

Soon the great Ramses II will come from the south with the great riches he has acquired from the Earth to dress the naked, to feed the hungry, and to begin the rebuilding of the temple.

Pepi II is rising up from the ranks to be the leader of a great army that will join with The Children Of The Light not to make war, but to make peace, to end hatred.

Amen Emhet III is coming from the west, to make the deserts bloom, so that there may be a home for the homeless and peace may reign.

Amen Emhet I comes from the southwest with wealth and skill to build cities like have never been seen.

Zoer is coming from the northwest to establish great places of learning that will be the envy of all the world.

And lastly from the north, comes Sahure, who will be skilled in the ways of the sea, both in peace and war, and with his wisdom shall build such a navy that no evil in the world would dare threaten Egypt's shores.

In time to come the temples of Egypt shall be rebuilt. The temples of the false teachers will fall into decay, and the people of Egypt will return to their Fathers and Their Mothers, and will worship Them in peace, building in the lands of others only with their consent.

But let mankind beware! Do not, I repeat, DO NOT try to interfere with The Awakening of Egypt's children, with their return to their own source. Such interference will not be tolerated, and the sorrow that will result from it will be greater than any people will want to pay.

We shall leave you in peace. Leave us, also, in peace.

Our next interview will be with the Spirit of George Washington, The Father Of Our Country. All questions for him are welcome. Also we welcome any questions for Spirits previously interviewed, and, suggestions for future interviews. If you'd like a list of all the Spirits previously interviewed in VOICES, kindly send a 32¢ stamp with your name and address. Also, kindly note our new address for all questions and correspondence.

Two interesting questions came from a reader concerning the main interview of our last issue. One was "How can we work with a Spirit like Nazi 1 who did such terrible evils?" and Two, "how could a Soul like Nazi 1 survive The Second Death?" Well, the answer to the first question is easy.

As Bearers Of The Light we are obligated to help any Soul that has turned away from The Darkness and is returning to The Light, striving to undo what it did in its lifetime. The Lords forsake no Soul to The Eternal Death and will do all in Their Power to help them make things right.

The second question however, is difficult to answer as no one exactly knows why some Souls succumb so easily to The Second Death and others that you would think would quickly perish survive.

Nazi 1 has been interviewed by the experts in The Spirit Realm many times, and they have noted these facts; though he encouraged others to do evil he did not personally participate in any atrocities as many of his associates that perished seemed to have enjoyed doing. So he endured the mental anguish of his victims but not the physical anguish. And even much of this mental anguish was directed at those responsible for the individual atrocities.

It is also noted that Nazi 1 did not personally profit from his actions. He did not enrich himself at the expense of those he was persecuting as many of his associates that perished did.

Those who actually do evil seem to suffer far more greatly than those who merely encourage it, though those that encourage it suffer greatly, also. Nazi 1 has stated to me many times he considers those that perished the lucky ones, that in reality he would much prefer to be one of Those than to suffer for thousands of years with that which he has done until it fades away into history, and The Third Reich is only a vague racial memory.

Some questions are hard to answer. Even the wisest can only speculate.

QUEEN VICTORIA QUESTIONS

Part Eight

60. In your own age you believed education of the masses was going too far. What do you think now?

A. I think today education has failed the masses. God has been taken out of it and should be put back in. The basics should be concentrated on and the person should be proficient in these before they are passed on to higher studies. I, personally, believe more emphasis should be put on training a person for the struggles of life rather than the sciences and philosophy. When a person is equipped to live, then they can expand their mind.

61. By 1879 you seem to be able to separate yourself from the things that you and Albert had done together, and create little places of your own. Did you find this difficult?

A. No. I had learned that I could take Albert with me wherever I went. That I did not have to be in a place that we had shared together for his presence to be with me. This gave me a great deal more freedom of movement.

62. In later years your attitude towards your children seemed to have changed greatly. You seemed to interfere much less and let them solve their own problems and make their own mistakes. Do you feel this was the proper course?

A. Oh, yes. And it is something I should have done far sooner. The hardest thing for a mother to accept is that her children are grown and it is time to let them go. I hung on to my children far too long, but fortunately learned the error of my ways in time, and gave up controlling them, and began counseling them, giving my displeasure when they did not behave properly, but not shutting them out if the offense was a trifle.

63. The first time you lost one of your children must have been tragic. Can you give any advice to our readers who might find themselves in a similar circumstance?

A. Only that they accept God's will, and understand that His wisdom is far greater than ours. And be assured in their hearts, that the separation from their loved ones will only be for a time. That when they, too, pass through that Veil Of Tears they will find their Loved Ones waiting in the place that has been prepared for them. I would much rather have gone first, but as God did not will this to be, I accepted His Way and carried on.

64. The British system of government totally bewilders me. How did you put up with this constant change of Prime Ministers jumping back and forth from people you liked to people you despised?

A. That, Lord Polley, is something I often wondered myself! Though I do not think our Political systems are all that different. A good ruler, rather a Queen or a President does the best with what The Almighty gives them, and that is all they can do. There were times, I admit, I would have liked to chuck the lot, but I was not permitted to do so, so I did what I could.

Galactic Security agents working in force near Ashtarian territory became aware that a fleet of forty smuggler vessels were preparing to run the blockade and bring in supplies the Ashtarians desperately needed to continue their war effort.

Fifty Galactic vessels were sent to intercept the convoy. They succeeded in doing so but there were also ten warships with the freighters. The smugglers did not withdraw as they normally do, but held their positions until thirty Ashtarian ships arrived to reinforce them, then they fought their way through the blockade.

After what only could be described as nine hours of vicious close quarter combat, the Galactic Forces withdrew. When more Ashtarian ships arrived The Galactic Forces lost seven vessels, six were heavily damaged and four were lightly damaged.

The Ashtarians lost seven vessels and the smugglers lost five. To what extent their ships are damaged is unknown. The Ashtarian Forces are claiming a major victory, where the Galactic Forces consider the incident a minor skirmish.

The Commander of The Galactic Forces, however, did send a signal of 'well fought' to the Ashtarian Forces as they withdrew.

OCTOBER 4, 1994

There has been a terrible explosion on the capitol of one of the worlds taking part in The Galactic blockade of The Ashtarians. At present it is impossible to determine if this explosion was an accident at one of their power plants or, a high yield weapon somehow slipped through their defenses.

There are at least thirty-thousand known dead, and another five or six-thousand may die of injuries they have sustained. The world's populace is demanding action against The Ashtarians, but their government, what is left of it, is refusing to take any action without positive proof of Ashtarian involvement.

OCTOBER 5, 1994

Ashtar Command has accepted The Galactic Forces' offer to send relief supplies to their Capitol, and to their forces fighting the rebels on two of their subject worlds. The Galactic Forces have done so on the stipulation they be allowed to deliver supplies to the rebels, also. Ashtar Command reluctantly agreed and they also agreed to send a representative to meet with the heads of The Galactic Forces to discuss terms for the lifting of the blockade.

OCTOBER 8, 1994

The Ashtarian representative has returned to his people with The Galactic Forces' demands for the lifting of the blockade. 1. The Ashtarians are to sign the Galactic Treaty of Non-Interference and abide by its principles. 2. The Ashtarians are to withdraw all their agents from primitive worlds they are trying to influence or have their agents join local movements and give up the Ashtarian way. 3. The Ashtarians are to help The Galactic Forces restore the societies the Ashtarians have interfered with as much as possible back to the state they were in before the Ashtarians interfered with them. 4. The Ashtarians are to pay the cost of the conflict against them. 5. The Ashtarians are to replace all vessels they have destroyed in the conflict and reduce the number of their warships to a level acceptable by The Galactic Community. 6. In the future Ashtaria will provide personnel for warships of The Galactic Community to help enforce the noninterference doctrine.

The Galactic Community stands firm that the blockade will NOT be lifted until the Ashtarians agree to these terms. The Ashtarian representative said the terms were totally unacceptable but he would take them back to his people. As he was departing word arrived of yet a third uprising against the Ashtarians. This means that three of their eight subject planets are now in rebellion against them.

The Ashtarian Forces continue to take a beating against the rebels rising against them. The Ashtarians have been driven from all but two cities on one continent of the first world to rebel, and from all but one city on a second continent.

It is believed by The Galactic Forces that The Ashtarians are bringing in vicious mercenaries from unallied races to help them in the battles, but even these have done them little good. It is also reported that the Ashtarians are stripping public buildings and private homes of native artifacts as they retreat, and also taking the jewelry of natives. The rebels have pleaded with The Galactic Forces to prohibit The Ashtarians from leaving their world with these precious symbols of their culture. The Galactic Forces have warned The Ashtarians that this will not be permitted.

The Ashtarians' answer that they have a right to take these things to pay for the many years of service they have provided the natives who show their ungratefulness. The Galactic Forces, however, do not agree with their arguments and have told them any ships attempting to leave with the properties of the native peoples will be stopped, boarded, and the native peoples' properties will be seized. The Ashtarians are totally enraged but can do nothing.

There has also been a tragic battle on the Ashtarian Home World. Two high ranking families were angry because their neighbors refused to send their sons to the fighting. They sent in their forces to recruit them, and thousands were killed in the resulting house to house fighting that went back and forth across the family boundaries for several days until the Ashtarian leader restored order. Exact casualties were not known.

One of the things that bothers me most about this Ashtarian mess is the saying The Galactic Forces use about The Ashtarians. It goes, 'They take a lickin' but they don't keep on tickin'!' It absolutely appalls me that a stupid Timex watch commercial has become part of the slang of space travelers! Is that the extent of our culture's donation to Galactic thinking?

OUR READERS WRITE

Always so interested in your magazine. But in the issue of January, 1994, I have found something which interests me in the power two; your speaking on the Spontaneous Human Combustion! Since many years we are in Europe, confronted with many cases of SHC. For example some years ago near my town in Burgandy, a Polish worker burned when he was sitting in his kitchen. The police made inquiry and the man was autopsied. But the death remained mysterious.

In the scientific press lately, one explanation was presented, especially in the famous British New Scientist. Perhaps, the SHC would be caused (dixit this source) by a sort of flatulence during the stomacal and intestinal transit. They spoke as inflammable substance, formed in the human corpses and which can be ignited- phosgene, a gaseous product which ignites in the oxygen of the air presence.

Your personal solution of the hydrogen is original and again more when you make relation with the capacity of flying or levitating. Especially because, one theory developed in France by the zoologist Francois de Sarre suppose that our Ancestor could have created flying creatures by embryonic manipulation or genetic engineering whose are the present birds the descendants. Your theory of the SHC because hydrogen production is very exciting.

But I have an objection and can you please consult the spirits concerning it; Why the substance lower than air produced by certain human corpses, permitting to fly, is no the helium, a gaseous element so light than air, and of course much minus dangerous?

In hoping news soon from you, best regards to you Gerald and Linda. Friendly, Michel Granger, Chalone/Saone, FRANCE.

Thank you for the interesting information you sent us on spontaneous human combustion in Europe. It took me a little bit to understand your question but I believe now I can give you a satisfactory answer, which is two fold.

I believe hydrogen delivers more lift than helium, and it is also more readily available. It would be far easier for a living organism to develop a means for producing hydrogen than it would be for producing the much rarer gas, helium. This is why I believe our Ancient Ancestors developed this trait. They sought for centuries to fully understand how their bodies were capable of doing this, but could never fully find a solution.

I think spontaneous human combustion will always be one of those mysteries that will intrigue us.

I heard you speaking on a local radio program today, and naturally my curiosity was piqued. One obvious question is "If you can speak with the dead, why don't you speak with, say Captain Kidd and ask him where his treasure is buried or, any number of others who've passed on leaving hidden wealth behind? Even if these Spirits can't foretell the future, surely they can tell the past. Just curious. Please send me a sample copy of your magazine. Two stamps are enclosed. Thanks. Chris Vissing, Cincinnati, Ohio.

You ask a very common question that has many answers. In reality sometimes Spirits DO return and tell others where they have hidden their wealth. Over the years I have seen examples of this in the Spiritualist Churches I worked with. But there are many difficulties in this sort of endeavor. Let me take one person you mentioned....Captain Kidd. It would be impossible for him to tell us where his treasures were hidden because he never had any treasures. He was one of those people that spent money as fast as he made it. His treasure was only a popular legend that never really existed.

Another good example would be the infamous Blackbeard. He suffered The Second Death shortly after entering The Spirit Realm, and all knowledge of HIS treasures are lost forever.

Thirdly, other famous individuals might be able to give the general locations of their loot, but without their personal maps we could spend fortunes and years trying to find their hoard.

So as you see, having access to The Spirit Realm does not guarantee access to information that can easily enrich one.

Of course there is another possibility, too, that I have not mentioned. Someone else may have gotten ahold of the treasures long ago and they are no longer at the locations where the original individuals left them.

Be very skeptical of individuals that claim they can supply such information from The Spirit Realm for an appropriate fee. All they want is to put their hand in your pocket.

JESUS OF NAZARETH has channeled through us an important warning to those engaged in anti abortion violence. Unfortunately we do not have room to publish it in VOICES. Anyone who would like a full size copy of this message may obtain it by sending a $2.00 donation. Make check or money order payable to Rev. Linda Polley.

There is also a recent channeling by Moses which is quite interesting we will not be able to publish. It is also available for a $2.00 donation.

An interesting question came up the other day that I had to do a little digging to find the answer for. It came about with a discussion of unfunded mandates, a hot topic in Washington right now. I was asked if this was ever a problem on The Ancient Worlds and I have to say it wasn't because in all three political systems there were nothing BUT unfunded mandates.

Each level of government only concerned itself with projects too big for the local governments, but it was up to the people in the local areas where these projects were being carried out to raise the funds for their completion, not the national or world governments.

If the world government passed a law saying industrial pollution had to be cleaned up it was the responsibility of the local governments to do the work and raise the funds, or be removed from office.

In the Hashon government and the Peepian government this might be an embarrassing situation. Failure to do one's job in The Holy Godden Empire, however, could be a fatal condition. Earthly politicians have it very, very easy. They have a population that will tolerate far more than the people of The Old Worlds would endure.

CLEAR IMAGE

We just finished reading a rather interesting article in Life Magazine on The Nazarene, and one thing in the article that intrigued me was them saying that of course The Nazarene bore no resemblance to the popular picture of Him put in most Christian literature. I had to laugh because the exact opposite was true, which has intrigued me for years.

The Nazarene bears a striking resemblance to today's representations. I will admit it is not an EXACT likeness, but it is close enough that if somebody hopped in a time machine, went back to Nazareth and was looking for The Nazarene, he would easily recognize Him.

One of the problems The Nazarene had in His ministry was that He did not resemble the Hebrews of His era. His genes had been altered to permit Him to carry on His Work and it altered His outward appearance as well.

More than once a priest or a scribe have been heard to remark "This man is not of Israel. He is a Roman or a Greek."

The people did not seem to care that he looked different, but it seemed to be a matter of great importance to The Authorities.

But how can this be? How could the picture of a man who lived so long ago be accurately produced by artists in the modern world? Well, just think about it for a moment. How many people in The Spirit World are looking at that Face daily, thinking about every detail of it, literally, worshipping it, hundreds of thousands of minds concentrating on the same Image? Now, when you really think of it is it little wonder that that Image seeps through to the mind of a living artist producing a portrait of the same individual? It doesn't surprise me at all, not one little bit.

ROCK & ROLL IN HEAVEN

With the establishing of The Grand Alliance there has been a lot of unusual activity in The Spirit Realm that has not occurred before.

Several years ago my wife and I became acquainted with the most popular rock group in The Spirit Realm called "Bach, Beethoven and Brahms Plus One," made up of Greek lead singer and guitarist Nikki, G, base guitarist from Italy, Matthew, keyboard and sax from England, and Christopher, Australian drummer and vocal backup. They do all the popular rock & roll classics plus many songs of their own like their tribute to Elvis called "Wikki Wack Wail," "We've Gotta Go And Save That Whale," "I'm In Love With My Postman," just to name a few.

A short time ago the incredible happened when this band of rock & rollers received an invitation from The Nazarene to do a Command Performance for Him. The boys, as they are often called, were delighted but totally perplexed as to what numbers they should perform, but finally settled on a list and the performance went very well and was received with good comments from The Nazarene and His followers. But it has been running through my mind for some time and I am sure others will ponder, also, in the same circumstances what songs would you have done? What do you feel would have been appropriate? I'm sure everyone would have their own list. But if you feel like sending yours in, go ahead, and we'll publish the most favored selections in a few months.

LAWS OF THE OLD WORLDS

Part 9

JUDICIAL & POLITICAL IMMUNITY

The idea that judges, prosecutors, and other public officials could not be charged or sued by the public for misconduct would have been totally ludicrous to the Hashons who believe that public officials were just as responsible to The Law as anyone else. If it could be proven that a prosecutor let a man go to prison who he knew was innocent, that man would not only be released, but that prosecutor would be sentenced for the exact same punishment as his victim. The same would be true of any police officer that gave false testimony or a judge who hid evidence. Even the highest leaders of the land were subject to The Law. No one was excluded from it.

Surprisingly, in The Holy Godden Empire this was also the case. If public officials were caught violating the Law the punishment was swift and harsh. Though there was a great deal of corruption, those doing it were very very careful NOT to get caught!

The other day we were reading a cute little book about different oddities and they mention gestures, and I got to thinking were any of these gestures passed down from The Ancient Worlds? Did they mean the same things there?

Surprisingly or not surprisingly depending on how you look at it, many of the gestures we use today were used in very similar ways by The Ancients. Among all the races if you put your thumb on the end of your nose and wiggle your fingers it was saying to someone you are a fool. To put your thumb in your ear and wiggle your fingers means you're not worth listening to. Raising the middle finger to anyone has the same meaning as it does today. But The Ancients also had some different signals.

Among the Godden Havens, to raise the index finger when you were parting from someone was a blessing which meant "May God be with you." Better translated "May The One be with you," but meant basically the same thing.

Among the Spiritists, however, the same gesture was a degrading insult meaning 'Go to God, He needs people like you.' This was considered one of the most defiling of insults. Among both races it was an insult to point your finger at a man and slap your butt. This was saying that man preferred men to women for his sexual pleasure, and was not appreciated by either race.

An old Hashon expression read 'Be careful how you speak with your hands.' And I would say that's very good advice.

An undeserved insult, no matter HOW it's given, is uncalled for. But the similarities in gestures around the world and from world to world is interesting. Perhaps it is because there's just so many things we can do with our hands we tend to follow the same patterns.

DONATION PREMIUMS

It has long bothered us that we have nothing to give in return for our sponsors' generosity. But The Lords Of Spirit have encouraged me to start a program.

Have you ever wanted to own a sacred icon, a religious artifact? Can you imagine what a fragment of The Nazarene's robe would be worth today, or, a piece of Muhammed's cloak? We have taken some of our old garments and cut them into fragments approximately two inches square which will be mounted on hand-typed certificates of authenticity and signed by the wearer which will increase their value as collectors' items.

Legend says displaying such an artifact in your home for others to see will fill it with Sacred Power, and bring wisdom and blessings to the inhabitants of that dwelling.

As the years pass and we have more and more Churches all over the world these artifacts will become more and more valuable and the families that own them will be considered blessed.

Currently we have the selection below available. This is your opportunity not only to be a part of history, to help make history, but to POSSESS a piece of history. May The Lords send Their Blessings through these tokens for your generosity.

Approximately 12 X 13 in. pieces of the bed-spread which Speaker Gerald Polley often laid on while in trance dictating "LIGHT: THE DIVINE HISTORY OF SPIRITISM" and, while doing work with many of The Bearers of Light, $50.00. 2 in. X 2 in. pieces, $5.00.

FEBRUARY 23, 1995

This day we have lost one of the special lights in this world, which, through his wonderful books, will never completely be gone from amongst us. James Herriot, author of "All Creatures Great And Small" and several other autobiographical works joined his Ancestors today.

The beloved English veterinarian not only brought much joy to the world by his kindness to everyone, but also made us aware of a better way to interrelate with our animals, and give them a better, happier life. May he be doubly blessed for all he has done!

As some of you know Speaker Gerald Polley is working again, in a local restaurant, so things are going just a little bit better, but he is only making $4.25 an hour. Hours will be plentiful this summer, but come next winter they will be short. So it will be important to build up a reserve for next winter, and get the old bills paid off.

Any little bit you can spare would be greatly appreciated. There is still much MUCH to do, and we cannot do it alone. Only with your support will The Awakening come.

IMAGINATION'S PLACE FICTION

YOU AREN'T SUPPOSED TO BE HERE
By; Rev. Speaker Gerald A. Polley

As The Ancient One exchanged bodies with the alien telepath he was very angry and the Commander of the squad was very aware of that when The Ancient One began to speak.

"You were ordered not to come here!" he snapped. "You were told that we could handle this situation ourselves! That we did NOT need outside interference. Explain yourself immediately."

The Commander straightened himself. "Sir!" he snapped, "We know we have violated the wishes of your superior, but we are only concerned for his safety. You do not know the Ash as we do. Most of their native agents are usually benign, but they often employ dangerous ones, who will eliminate any they consider a real threat to their operations. We were aware of such an operative and felt it our duty to check on his operations. We are acting on behalf of the Union and with the consent of the blockade forces. Alien interference IS our business, sir. Request any disciplinary action you wish on me, I ask only you help my men.

Our vehicle is damaged. We cannot lift to meet the mother ship and it will take them three hours or more to land and pick us up."

The Ancient One softened. "What happened?" he asked.

"Apparently the local authorities were also watching our suspect, and must've thought we were part of his criminal operation. They tried to apprehend us. When we fled they opened fire. I was forced to return fire and disable a couple of them to make good our escape. Nothing serious, just leg wounds."

"Can you be positive of that?" The Ancient One snapped.

The officer again straightened. "Sir," he snapped, "the marksmanship of an Imperial Ranger is rarely questioned."

"That is true," The Ancient One agreed. "How bad are your men hurt?"

"A burst of fire," the Commander reported, "entered the vehicle before we shut the doors. Much of our electronic equipment was knocked out, and two of the men were wounded, one seriously. Oh! Please, sir, the more we talk the worse their condition grows. Please look at them!"

"All right!" The Ancient One agreed.

The Commander led him to the back door of the vehicle which another man quickly opened. The two men were laid out side by side with just enough space for The Ancient One to climb in between them.

"Good evening, gentlemen!" one man had an i.v. and seemed to be the worst, but The Ancient One took a quick glance at the other's wounds just to be sure. He was hit in the hip and the leg; uncomfortable wounds, but not too threatening. He turned to the other man undid the bandages and lifted them. "S__!" he gasped, lowering the bandages back down. The young man had been hit at least four times. The Ancient One wondered that he was still alive.

"Shut off all your electronic equipment!" he snapped. "I need all the power I can get!"

Give me a med kit and I need some light."

A couple of extra lamps were quickly hung, and the other two Rangers stood watch as The Ancient One worked. His young patient drifted in and out of consciousness and went through another bag of plasma before The Ancient One was done. He went to work on the other man.

"Your powers aren't working, are they?" the man asked looking to his companion.

"You're very similar to the natives," The Ancient One answered, "but you're just different enough that the full effect of my healing powers doesn't work. It's helping some, but I don't think it's enough."

He held up the first bullet and examined it. "Mauser!" he muttered, "Thought so! Fire pattern looked right."

He got the second bullet and sealed the wound. "Don't worry," he encouraged "you'll be fine."

His young patient stirred. "Sir!" he cried, "Sir!"

The Ancient One went over and took his raised hand. "Right here," he comforted. The moment he took his hand he knew his efforts had been in vain. He could feel the man's life force ebbing away.

"Sir!" the man cried, "Sir! You are one with The Keeper Of Truth. Hear my confession that I might die in peace."

"I'm not one of your Priests," The Ancient One answered.

"You are more than Priest," the young man answered, "You are Light Bearer, you are Truth. Hear my confession."

The Ancient One began the prayers and the young man made his confession. And when he was done according to his peoples' customs, The Ancient One promised him entry into Paradise.

The young man gave a shiver and The Ancient One watched his Spirit lift from his body and move to a seat in the front of the vehicle. The Silver Cord snapped and slowly the body ceased to function. The Ancient One covered it with a blanket and went outside. The Commander watched him come and did not have to be told.

"Thank you for trying," he moaned.

"I heard the youth's confession," The Ancient One began. "He was concerned about his relationship with your wife."

The Commander raised his hand. "Please sir," he interrupted, "I know. Let us not speak of it. I am an old man who took a young bride who is sometimes lonely when I am many hours away but is always to me when I am home a good and proper wife. I hold her or the young man in no ill will. And if the child isn't mine, what of it? It will be loved just as much."

The Ancient One rather liked this man, but he wanted to make sure what he was about to say would be understood. "Commander," he snapped, "leave my world. Don't ever come back. Don't any of you ever come back unless you have our absolute permission. Do I make myself clear?"

The Commander came to attention. "Yes, Imperial Lord!" he snapped, "I will convey your instructions to Command."

"Good!" The Ancient One snapped. "Good-bye!"

He returned to his body which was already asleep, and did not even bother to awaken. "Damn!" he cursed. "When thousands die away off you feel little but when one dies in your arms...." he shook off the thought and slipped into deeper sleep, or, what he considered sleep.
